FINE STEEL,

By the KING's PATENT, for England and the Plantations.

JAMES GOODYER, of Guildford, begs leave to inform his Friends in the Iron Trade, and the Public in general, that he has brought to the greatest Perfection the Art of Making Steel directly from Pig Iron, without being first made into Bar Iron. One Kind of it is equal if not superior to any imported from Germany, being fit for Springs, and other Uses which require a mild Steel; the other Sort is exceeding hard, and at the same Time strong bodied, hardens at a very low Heat, as low as Cast Steel, and at the same Time will bear a welding Heat. His Tilt Hammers and other Works being nearly finished, he hopes he shall be able to send a Quantity to Market in a few Weeks. As there are several Tons of each Sort under Hand, the many Orders he has received shall be executed as soon as possible.
